AIA Ohio Advancing the practice of architecture in Ohio through advocacy, leadership, and service

■ Architects + Advocacy: Why the PAC Matters

this work by contributing to the Ohio Architects PAC.

Since January, AIA Ohio's Government Advocacy Committee (GAC) has participated in nearly a dozen meetings with legislators, introducing them to the architectural profession and the issues that matter most to architects across the state. Working in collaboration with AIA Ohio's lobbyists, The Batchelder Company, GAC members are also closely monitoring more than 20 pieces of legislation for their potential impact on the profession. These dedicated volunteers are working diligently on your behalf to ensure architects have a strong voice in Ohio's policymaking process. You can support

AIA Ohio uses the Ohio Architects PAC to support statewide officials and candidates who understand the architectural profession's priorities and can help advance its legislative goals. Contributions to candidates for legislative office are bipartisan and made in consultation with AIA Ohio's lobbyists. Targeted legislators include House and Senate leadership from both parties, as well as members of key committees considering legislation that affects the architectural profession.

The Ohio Architects PAC is an important tool in AIA Ohio's advocacy efforts, helping build relationships that ensure architects are represented in discussions at the Statehouse. Member contributions are essential to sustaining this work—we cannot do it without your support.

Please consider making a contribution to the Ohio Architects PAC and help strengthen the profession's voice in Ohio's policy and regulatory process. Click here to view the AIA Ohio PAC Frequently Asked Questions.
